Children's Best 50c and $1 Garments

Mothers who once visit the Palais Royal's Children's Department are generally made permanent patrons. First, they find their children really enjoy a visit to this third floor. It's because the attendants here understand children in all their phases. Some have to be given a picture book-and it isn't taken away when the child leaves. Some "take" to this or that attendant at once-and then the way is unusually easy. The patience of neither mothers nor children is ever tried-because garments are here adapted for children of all types and ages, so that "trying on" is generally confined to but one or two garments. With prices always less or the garments better than usual, mother's purse is not allowed to suffer.
